PRISM ENTERTAINMENT · PRESS KIT

WALKERS

HORROR-COMEDY · SHORT FILM · IN POST

LOGLINE

On a late-night drive through the desert, four friends are too busy roasting each other to notice that something has started following them.

AT A GLANCE

TITLE WALKERS	GENRE Horror-comedy
RUNTIME 6 min 30 sec	STATUS In post-production, final cut Dec 2026
PREMIERE TBD, festival run first	COUNTRY / LANGUAGE USA / English
FILMED IN Apple Valley & Burbank, California	CAMERA ARRI Alexa 35
PRODUCTION COMPANY Prism Entertainment	DIRECTOR Christina Woo

SYNOPSIS

SHORT

Four friends cut through the Mojave on a late-night road trip, trading jabs about dating apps, breakups and who's really who. When the talk turns to skinwalkers, only one of them takes it seriously. Then they stop for gas.

LONG

Somewhere past midnight on an empty desert highway, Leila, Artie, Jacob and Claire are deep into a road trip and fully out of patience with each other. Claire needs a bathroom, badly. Jacob won't take anything seriously, including his relationship with Claire. Artie's heavily filtered dating-app photos are up for review. And Leila, the driver, would very much like everyone to stop saying the word "skinwalker" after dark.

When they pull into a lonely gas station, the bickering turns sharper and more personal, and nobody is paying attention to what's showing up in the side mirror.

TEASER

STILLS

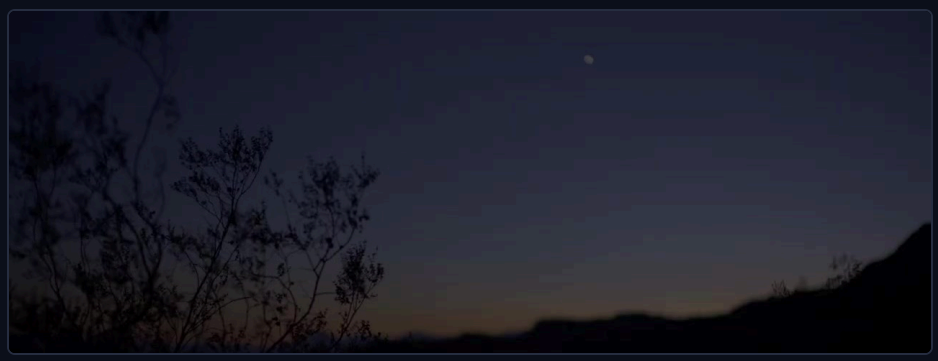

Tap a still to open it full size. All stills © 2026 Prism Entertainment.

BEHIND THE SCENES

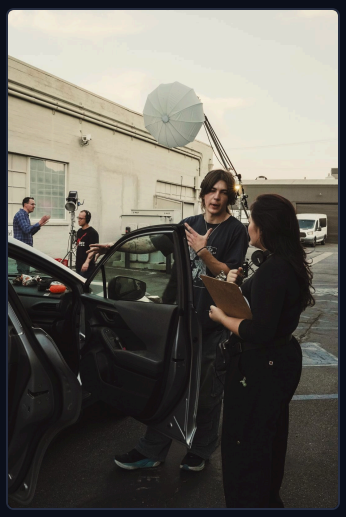

DAY ONE · BURBANK

DAY TWO · APPLE VALLEY

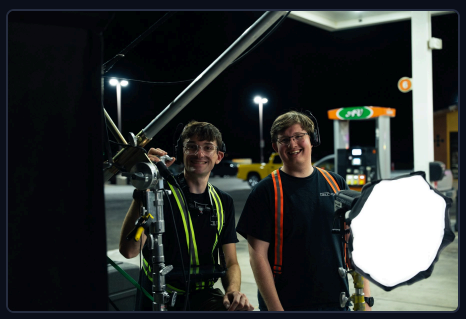

BTS photography by Logan Bole. Tap a photo to open it full size.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

Walkers is about the bubble of the self. Four friends drive through a vast, ancient landscape, but their world is only as wide as a phone screen and the inside of a 2013 Subaru. The title works two ways. It names the thing moving in the shadows, and it describes the friends themselves: young people constantly shifting their skins to fit dating profiles, social pecking orders and other people's expectations.

I've always been drawn to inattentional blindness, the way we can miss a monster standing right in front of us because we're too busy arguing about who we are. The dialogue is fast, funny and defensive. Leila hides behind a cool-girl front, Artie edits himself to find connection, and Jacob jokes his way out of commitment.

We built the look on a contrast between the warm, cluttered car and the cold, endless desert. Inside, the frame is tight and busy, lit by phone screens and fast-food wrappers. Outside, the camera turns wide and patient, and whatever is out there is only ever glimpsed in pieces, in side mirrors and reflections.

I want audiences to walk away feeling watched by something they chose to ignore, and asking themselves who they're leaving behind while they're busy looking at themselves.

— Christina Woo, Director

KEY CREATIVES

CHRISTINA WOO

WRITER & DIRECTOR

IMDb · christinawoofilms.com

Christina Woo is a writer and director who comes to live action from animation. Walkers is her first live-action film. Her writing is known for quick, dry, very online dialogue, built around characters who roast each other to avoid saying what they actually feel.

TEDDY HAWKE

PRODUCER

IMDb · prismentmt.com

Teddy Hawke is an independent film producer and the founder of Prism Entertainment, a production and development company that works with independent artists on micro- and low-budget projects. He came to film from marketing, and he focuses on contained, producible genre stories with room to grow. Walkers is the first step toward a skinwalker anthology series.

KARL-ERIK MILLS

DIRECTOR OF PHOTOGRAPHY

karlerikmills.com

Karl-Erik Mills shot Walkers on the ARRI Alexa 35. He built the film's split look: tight, phone-lit interiors packed into a moving car, against wide, patient frames of the empty desert and a gas station glowing in the dark.

THE SERIES

Walkers is the first chapter of a planned anthology. In every episode, a skinwalker slips into a group, whether a friend group, a family, a workplace or a small town, and quietly takes over its pecking order. Nobody notices, because everyone is too busy performing for each other. New people, new places, same rules.

CREDITS

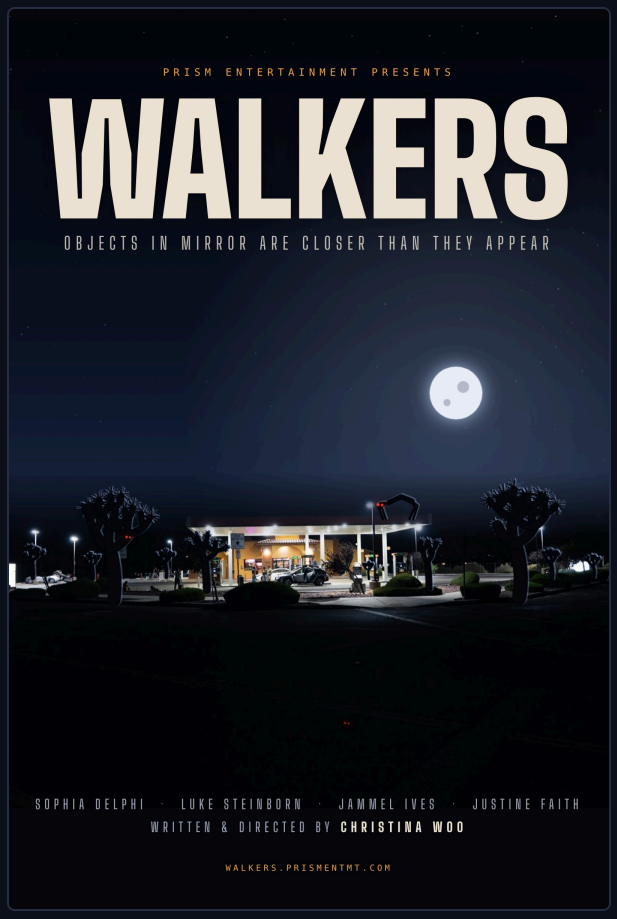

CAST

Leila	Sophia Delphi
Artie	Jammel Ives
Dancer / Skinwalker	Lilly Wylde
Jacob	Luke Steinborn
Claire	Justine Faith

CREW

Written & directed by	Christina Woo
Director of photography	Karl-Erik Mills
Editor	Rodrigo Calderon
VFX artist	John Murphy
Sound mixer	Su Lee
Gaffer	Bailey Rye
G&E / AC swing	Florian Placzek
Art department coordinator	Gisella Esparza
Assistant editor	Kim Perez
Production assistants	Colin Campbell, Ryan Pope, Jared Harris, Kameron Harris
Producer	Teddy Hawke
1st assistant director	Blaine Fuller
Original score	Emily Tschirhart
Colorist	Roy Sun
Post-sound engineer	Su Lee
Assistant camera	Kit Kocanda
DIT	Rodrigo Calderon
Wardrobe	Ev Tschirhart
BTS photo & video	Logan Bole
Waste management	Linda Hawke

POSTER

Placeholder key art. Official poster coming Dec 2026.

CONTACT

Press, festival and screening inquiries:
teddy@prismentmt.com

Prism Entertainment · prismentmt.com
Instagram · @walkersshortfilm